Dear Sir:

We do not seem to have any record of having ordered from you a copy of "Spanish Songs of Old California", as charged on the enclosed invoice. Our records do show that, on March 20th, 1924, we ordered a copy of this book from the J.K.Gill Company, and that the book was received by us on March 31st, being charged to us on a J.K.Gill Company invoice, dated April first, 1924. A notation on this invoice indicates that the book came to us by express from you. We do not have any record of having received any other copy of the book, other than the one received in response to the order to the J.K.Gill Company.

If this information is not sufficient, so that you can cancel your charge, please let us know the date of the order to you, and the name of the person by whom the order is signed. This favor will be very much appreciated.

Very truly yours,

M. H. Douglass
Librarian.
